Periodontal Plastic Surgery: Restoring Esthetics and Function

Periodontal plastic surgery refers to surgical procedures performed to prevent or correct anatomic, developmental, traumatic, or plaque disease-induced defects of the gingiva, alveolar mucosa, or bone. These procedures may be performed to restore aesthetics and function, which in turn helps patients improve their smile and periodontal health. This presentation will serve to discuss the various clinical indications for periodontal plastic surgery procedures and how these procedures can benefit our patients.

Dr Ansgar C. Cheng
Dental Specialist in Prosthodontics
Specialist Dental Group®

BDS (Hong Kong), MS (Northwestern, USA),
Cert. Prosthodontics (Northwestern, USA),
Cert. Maxillo-Facial Prosthetics (UCLA),
FRCD (Canada), FRACDS (Australia), FAM (Singapore)

Extreme Dental Reconstruction: To Be or Not To Be

Prosthodontic reconstruction of damaged teeth or bite can be a very challenging clinical endeavour. In the right hands, the treatment outcome can be very predictable. With the latest development of computer technology, the planning and execution of these procedures yields extraordinary results. This presentation will showcase some of our clinical experience at Specialist Dental Group in these types of complicated treatments. The scientific basis will also be covered in this session.
